

GIRL'S NECK BROKEN BY FALL FROM TREE

Slips From Branch While Nutting and Plunges Thirty Feet to Ground.

Gladya R. Lewis, twelve years old, whose parents live in Orange, N. J., fell thirty feet from a tree while gathering hickory nuts and died from a broken neck while doctors were hurrying her to the Orange Memorial Hospital.

The girl, who went nutting to West Orange with her sister and several companions yesterday, climbed the tree and while shaking down the nuts to the others, her foot slipped from a limb and she was hurled to the ground.

She struck on her head and shoulder and lay senseless. The other children, terrified, ran for help and an ambulance was immediately summoned.

Although, aside from the broken neck, Gladya had suffered an injury to the brain and had both wrists and one elbow fractured, she was still alive when the surgeons arrived.

After hurriedly lifting her into the ambulance the physicians worked over the child while a race was started for the hospital. Little Gladya died, however, before the institution was reached.

HOLLAND CO. SUES NIXON.

Lewis Nixon was before Justice Dowling in Supreme Court today, a defendant in an action brought by the Holland Torpedo Boat Company for $120,000 damages.

The claim is based on the alleged failure of Nixon to deliver four torpedo boats on time to the Holland concern, which had a contract for them with the United States Government.

Mr. Nixon's answer was that the delay was due to the failure of the Holland firm to furnish parts of mechanism and plans necessary to the work.
